Voltalia acquires a 60 megawatt solar plant

Voltalia (Euronext Paris, ISIN code: FR0011995588), an international player in renewable energies, announces the acquisition of a 55% stake in the 60-megawatt Mosselbanken solar plant in the Netherlands.

Located in Zeeland, the most southwestern province of the Netherlands, the Mosselbanken solar plant is located in the industrial port of Terneuzen. The plant revenues benefit from a Power purchase agreement (PPA) of 15 years.

Voltalia has been active since 2019 in the Netherlands as a service provider, with the development, construction, operation, maintenance and management of solar plants for third-party clients, directly and through Greensolver, its subsidiary specialised in renewable power plant management services. The Dutch market offers significant potential for Voltalia, not only in energy production but also in providing services across the entire renewable energy value chain. The group currently has offices in Amsterdam and Groningen, employing a total of around 10 permanent employees, and more temporary or seconded employees when servicing clients who build solar plants.

"This is the first time we will generate power in the Netherlands, strengthening our position as service provider in the fast-growing Dutch renewable energy market. The Mosselbanken solar plant helps to avoid 17,000 tons of CO₂ annually", says Sébastien Clerc, CEO of Voltalia.

Next on the agenda: Turnover Q4 2023, on January 31, 2024 (after market close)
